Re: Calgary Stampede Class Action Settlement – Survey Distribution Process

To Whom It May Concern,

Epiq Class Action Services Canada Inc. ("Epiq") was appointed as the Claims Administrator in connection with the administration of the Calgary Stampede Class Action Settlement. As part of that role, Epiq assisted with the distribution of a survey to class members at the request of Class Counsel.

The purpose of the survey was to provide class members with an opportunity to voluntarily share input. To facilitate this process while protecting class member privacy, Epiq distributed the survey invitation directly to class members using contact information already held by Epiq in its capacity as claims administrator.

On April 16, 2025, Epiq sent an email to class members sharing a link to an optional survey. The email advised that participation was optional and provided the survey link for those class members who chose to participate.

On June 30, 2025, Epiq sent a follow-up email reminding class members of the optional survey and advising that the survey link would remain open until July 3, 2025. The reminder again emphasized that participation was at the option of the class member and included the survey link.

The survey was hosted and administered by Stone-Olafson, an independent third-party research firm engaged for that purpose. Stone-Olafson was responsible for collecting any information submitted by class members who voluntarily chose to participate through the survey platform.

Epiq did not provide class member contact information to the defendants or to Stone-Olafson. Epiq's role was limited to distributing the survey invitation and did not include reviewing, accessing, or controlling any responses submitted through the survey platform.

Sincerely,

This is Exhibit "E" referred to in the Affidavit of Amy Kuang, affirmed before me on March 12, 2026.

Members of the Class,

In April the Calgary Stampede shared an opportunity for class members to provide input on new initiatives, at your option, through some provided questions. If you would still like to provide input, the link will be open until July 3.

Here is the link again if needed:

A reminder that as part of the class action settlement, the Calgary Stampede and Calgary Stampede Foundation committed to reaching out to class members to seek input on new initiatives, at their option, in a trauma-informed environment. Now that the settlement is concluded, we are providing an opportunity to provide input through the questions in this link.

The Calgary Stampede has partnered with Calgary Communities Against Sexual Abuse (CCASA) on the development of these questions. They will be involved in helping to review the results. Stone-Olafson, a third-party research firm, will collect this information, ensuring its confidentiality. Further information is provided in the first page of the survey.

If you have any questions, or if you do not want to receive information about future opportunities to provide input on new Calgary Stampede initiatives, please reply by email to help@stone-olafson.com or apark@calgarystampede.com. Please do not reply to this e-mail directly as it is sent from an unmonitored inbox.

Sincerely,

Calgary Stampede Settlement Claims Administrator
